Content Focus

Fill in the blanks with the correct answers. Use the words in the box to help you.

exchange	different	important	fair	buy
----------	-----------	-----------	------	-----

Money is (1) important regardless of which country you live in. You can use money to (2) buy food when you are hungry and clothes to keep you warm. Before money was invented, people would (3) exchange what they had for the things they wanted. Money was then created because it was difficult to make an exchange (4) fair. Today, (5) different forms of money exist to make exchange easier.

Comprehension

Read the passage below and answer the questions below.

In ancient times, people did not use money. Instead, they would exchange what they have for what they needed or wanted. This is called barter trade. However, it was difficult as this form of exchange was not always fair.

As a result, people started to make use of specific items like barley or salt to exchange for the things they wanted to get. This was still difficult as these items were very heavy to carry. Soon, people began using other things like shells as they were easier to carry as compared to sacks of barley.

Over time, countries developed their own form of payment by using gold or silver coins. Money was hence created. Today, many countries use paper money which is lighter and easier to carry.

What events led to the invention of money? Write “1” to “5” according to the correct sequence.

Then, they decided to use gold or silver to make coins.	4
Later, they used sacks of barley or salt to exchange for things.	2
