Money was not always in the same form. At first, people used seashells or feathers as money. Around 650 BC, Chinese made coins with metal. The coins were round. And they had holes in the center. Later, other countries like Greece made coins. Greek coins looked different. They had pictures of owls or horses on them. Later, Chinese made paper money. It was lighter! Today, we don't even need to carry coins or paper money. We can use a check or credit card instead. Like this, money changed its form for easier exchange!
